"LON" ABBOTT NOW MARRIED

FORMER GREENCASTLE BOY
TAKES BRIDE IN MINNE-SOTA UNIVERSITY
TOWN.

TEACHING IN MINNESOTA

Charming in every detail was the nuptial service which was read last evening at the Andrew Presbyterian church when Miss Ruth Ware, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Ware, of Fargo, N. D., and Dr. G. A. Abbott, of Fargo, were married before about 300 relatives and friends. The wedding took place at eight o'clock and the ceremony was performed by Rev. William H. Wilson, pastor of the church, in a setting of palms, festoons of smilax and pink peonies.

Miss Marion Trask, who has been attending school at Ely court, Greenwich, Conn., attended the bride as maid of honor in pink satin with an overdrape of pink chiffon, and her flowers were an armful of fragrant pink and white roses. The bridesmaids, the Misses Janet Ferguson and Helen Hoag, wore white net over white silk slips and held dainty clusters of pink and white rosebuds tied with tulle.

Little Blanchard Ware, a nephew of the bride, dressed in a fine white serge suit, scattered rose petals in the path of the bride as she approached the altar on the arm of her father who gave her in marriage. Mrs. P. H. Ware and Mrs. J. R. Ware stretched the white satin ribbons to form an aisle for the bridal party and they were gowned in white silk elaborated with Mechlin lace and held pink and white blossoms and ferns.

The bride was charmingly attired in white satin made entraine and fashioned with a bodice of silver lace. Her full tulle veil was held in place with orange blossoms and the bridal bouquet was a combination of orchids and bride's roses tied with streamers of white satin ribbon. The ushers led the bridal party to the altar and they were Mr. Paul Ware, a brother of the bride from Fargo, N. D., and Mr. Fred Hamblin.

Fifty guests were present at the reception which followed the wedding and the dining room where the wedding supper was served was white with pink peonies and ferns and pink-shaded candles. Mr. and Mrs. Lodge, of Eau Claire came to Minneapolis for the wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Abbott left immediately for an extended trip, going by way of the Great Lakes, and they will be at home after Oct. 1, at Grand Forks. The bride was a member of the Theta Chi sorority East high school and is a graduate of the University of Minnesota of the class of '06. Dr. Abbott is a graduate of DePauw and is a member of the Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity.

WARRANT ISSUED FOR BENEFIEL

INSANE BARBER AT RUSSELLVILLE PROVES DANGEROUS AND SHERIFF GOES TO SECURE HIM.

TRIED TO COMMIT SUICIDE

Saturday afternoon a long distance telephone message from Russellville informed the county clerk that James Benefiel, the barber who attempted to commit suicide several days ago, is constantly becoming more dangerous, and that he could not be controlled at Russellville. It was also stated that a commission had passed upon the case and declared the man insane.

A warrant was issued for Benefiel's arrest and detention in the county jail till it is possible to take him to the insane asylum, application for admittance having already been made. Sheriff Stroube and Deputy Kelley left this afternoon to secure the man.

The text meetings are still being held on South Jackson Street.

THE "VAN" TO USE DREADNAUGHTS

WILL PROVIDE ROAD WITH NEW ALL-STEEL PASSENGER
CARS ACCIDENT
PROOF.

LITTLE WOOD TO BE USED

According to an announcement made this week, the Pennsylvania Railroad system has in service on its lines, or in order, nearly two thousand passenger cars of all steel construction. These cars have been added to the company's passenger equipment since June, 1906 when it was announced that all future additions to passenger equipment on the Pennsylvania system would be of all steel construction.

The steel passenger cars on the Pennsylvania system have been called "Dreadnaught" cars by reason of their construction. They weigh some 118,500 pounds as against 85,000 pounds in the standard vestibule wooden coach. This increase in weight very greatly reduces the vibration of the car, thereby adding to the comfort of passengers. The car is noncollapsible, its principal feature being a central box girder twenty-four inches wide by nineteen inches deep extending throughout the entire length of the coach; this girder, in collisions, prevents telescoping. The car is fire proof, containing only about 125 pounds of wood; the latter is used for window frames and arm rests in the seats.

With the 704 steel cars in use at present, and the 1,284 cars in order, the Pennsylvania system will shortly have available for use on its lines east and west of Pittsburgh and Erie a total of 1,988 solid steel passenger equipment cars.

CHARITIES AGENT VISITS PUTNAM

MAKES EXAMINATION OF THE CONDITIONS AT THE POOR
FARM AND AT THE JAIL.

DECLARES HERSELF PLEASED

Miss Ethel Clark, of the State Board of Charities, spent Friday afternoon and Saturday morning in Greencastle and Putnam County her business here was to make an examination of conditions at the jail and the poor farm, and report her findings to the State Board.

Saturday afternoon was spent at the poor farm. Miss Clark expressed herself as greatly pleased with the management of the asylum. She stated that the sanitation was good and the condition of the inmates also good and there was little complaint and this unfounded.

At the jail Miss Clark also found things in excellent condition. She went over the establishment with Deputy Sheriff Kelley, and received some enlightenment on many points. Miss Clark was greatly worried as to the lack of bath tubs in the jail, but was informed that the county had not yet supplied them in the sheriff's residence. She also asked as to arrangements for the laundry of prisoners and was informed that in general prisoners brought no change of clothing with them. Usually their suit cases were forgotten in the rush of making ready for the sojourn in the local bastille, where extra clothing was brought along the jail provided soap, water and the prisoners time and he could do his own laundry work.

In general Miss Clark complimented the sanitation of the jail and declared conditions were excellent except for the bath tubs.

MASONS VISIT BRAZIL

Greencastle Commandery and Other Masons Attended the Dedication of the New Masonic Temple at Brazil.

The work was accomplished by that distinguished Mason Calvin W. Prather, Grand Secretary of the Grand Lodge of Indiana, acting as Grand Master, assisted by other grand officers selected by him for duty.

Temple Lodge was honored by the appointment of J. L. Randel as grand junior warden and Major Cullen as grand secretary.

Grand Chaplin Wolf delivered the address in which he told the ladies present the secrets of masonry, but suggested to them to fear not if their husbands were really at the lodge. Said Masons made the best of husbands, but advised them to keep posted on the meeting nights and said the lodge did not meet every night.

The oppressive heat thinned out and disfigured the ranks to an extent as Terre Haute failed to turn up in line and Greencastle, the only visiting commandery, was not well represented as to members, but as to valor and moral significance could not have been excelled. When the lines were formed the cry resounded upon the air why did Major Cullen forget the Grand Standard? Forgetting that this Sir Knight had not been Standard Bearer for twenty years.

Eminent Commander Ayler ran away from the heat—divesting himself, his shirt and introducing that old amusing vaudeville act of sticking on collar and cuffs.

One part of the well arranged program was a grand banquet prepared by the Star Sisters, who with grace and sisterly affection, dispensed with lavish hand their bountiful supplies until the last Masonic brother surrendered.

At this banquet members from here were unanimously present and among the speakers Brother Randel was called and spoke for our city and the Masonic order and gracefully invited Brazil to attend the dedication of our new hall when we get it.

The following members of the Greencastle Commandery, No. 11, were present: Dr. A. E. Ayler, R. W. Houck, Maj. C. C. Cullen, R. S. Cowgill, Elmer Crawley, J. L. Randel, Jas. McD. Hays, Edwin B. Lynch, C. T. Zaring, Alec A. Houck, H. S. White, D. M. Newton, Wm. E. Baney, Ross Huffman, Ivan Huffman, W. B. Taylor, S. J. Wilton.

MRS CONKLIN ENTERTAINS

Mrs. George Conklin entertained on Thursday for Mrs. Walter Potter. The shower that came up at noon for a short time made the day very pleasant for it. The house was beautifully decorated in cut flowers and ferns and potted plants; one room was in ramblers entirely the reception room was in daisies and potted ferns and the dining room had a vase of white lilies and ferns on the table but the most delightful place of all was the porch room. Lunch was served on the back porch which was a bower of beauty and coolness. It was decorated in daisies, bunting in different places, making it a most delightful place. There was noticed especially a red geranium with twenty-eight bunches of flowers on it. PleZee was served

WAR WITH JAPAN.

There seems to be a universal belief the world over that sooner or later Japan and the United States must fight each other. The public men of France, Germany, England and the other countries of Europe are sure that war must come between these two countries. These men base their belief upon several facts. First, Japan is over-crowded and must have an outlet for her constantly increasing population. There is little chance for this outlet except toward the west. Asia, even Korea, is already crowded. The Philippines alone seem to offer a solution to Japan's problem. It is in attempting to thwart the ambition of Japan to secure these islands that the United States will become involved in war. Here is a point that Europe overlooks. We do not care enough about the Philippines to fight for them. If the Japs will take care of the Filipinos they can have the islands. America is not, except in some official circles, infected with the empire idea. It would be a difficult thing to get an army to fight Japan for no other purpose than preserving the Philippines. Most of the citizens of America do not want the islands, begrudge the money spent there, the exploiting of the islands by politicians, sugar trusts and other irresponsible elements of society. War there may be, but not over the Philippines if the masses of the American citizenship have any word in the matter. That is a bone that we refuse to quarrel over, even at the instigation of the sugar trust.

Styles of Architecture.

In their architecture the Moresque strove for the negation of the weight altogether; the Egyptian placed the weight firmly on the ground; the Greek lifted it up in the air with an assertion of graceful power; the Roman confused weight and support; the Byzantine represented weight without support; the Moor suggested that there was no weight at all.

POULTRY

A LEAN-TO POULTRY HOUSE.

Very Comfortable and Convenient When Built Against a Stable.

The accompanying cut represents a very convenient and comfortable poultry house, built against a stable or other outbuilding. The portion adjoining the other wall is eight feet high, and the lowest part of roof is six feet. The roosts and droppings boards are set parallel with the yards, and a partition separates the two houses, so that they may each have a yard, as shown in illustration. The nest boxes are placed under the dropping boards and the straw and litter are kept on the floors of the houses.

Of course we prefer the separate scratching shed, but when something cheap, designed for utility, is wanted then the above is most admirably suited. It may be built any size desired, and the most will be much less than that of a separate house and yards.

Size of the Eggs.

While it is true that small eggs and large eggs all sell alike, yet it is equally true that a basket of large eggs will be the first to sell, even though they bring no more than the small ones, and it is also true that the poultryman who can furnish large eggs of uniform size and color will have customers, when those who supply a mixed assortment will some times find that his supply exceeds the demand.

A good way to develop large eggs is by selection of hens. Each year those that come nearest laying the kind of eggs wanted should be kept for the next year's breeding yards and in this way a flock of fowls that will lay large eggs may be obtained. The time is surely coming when market men will discriminate against small eggs, and the sooner we secure a flock which will furnish us the preferred kind, the more certain are we to reap the early profits from the change.

How to Improve a Flock.

It often happens that one who has heretofore kept only mongrel fowls becomes convinced that he should keep a pure breed, but for some reason he finds it inconvenient to secure the same. The cost in many cases is too much, and, though he would like to have better fowls, he feels that he cannot afford it.

In such cases we would suggest a gradual improvement, a building up, as it were, of the mongrels he has. A male bird of some good breed will give him the first year half breeds, and these mated with a pure breed will the next year further improve the flock, and so on for a few years, when he will have a good strain of pure-bred fowls. Begin next year to get on the right road for profit.

BOTH ACCEPT INVITATIONS

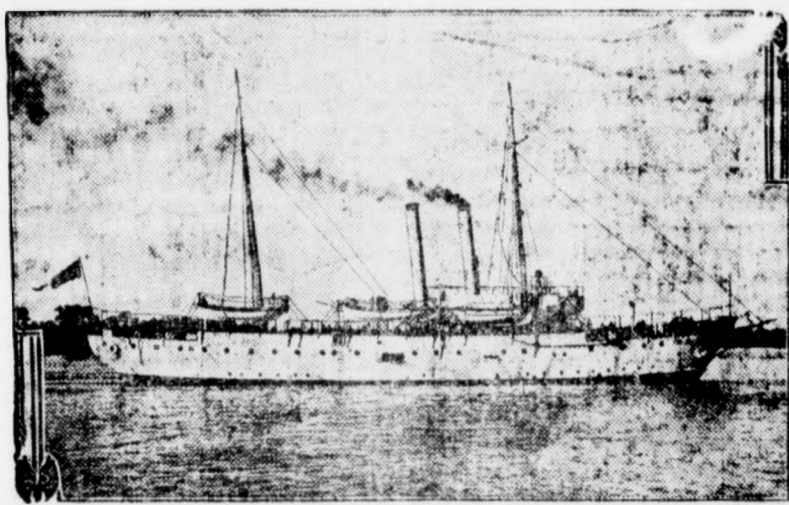

President Taft and Col. Roosevelt at Ohio Valley Exposition.

OTHER NOTED MEN TO ATTEND

Governors of Various States and Mayors of Cities of the Ohio Valley Promise Support to the Enterprise and Express Their Intentions of Visiting Cincinnati During the Great Exposition.

Cincinnati, O. — (Special.)— While no foreign potentates or visitors of royal birth have as yet announced their intention of attending the Ohio Valley Exposition, which will be held here next fall, a sufficient number of acceptances to invitations have been received from noted men of America to make the absence of foreign notables felt not at all. One of the first promises to attend the Exposition from men of international reputation was received from President Taft, who, besides praising the objects for which the Exposition will be held, declared his intention of spending at least a week in Cincinnati during the time of the progress of the big industrial enterprise. Following the acceptance of President Taft came others from Governor Deneen, of Illinois; Governor Harmon, of Ohio; Governor Claiborne, of West Virginia; Governor Marshall, of Indiana; Governor Patterson, of Tennessee; and Governor Wilson, of Kentucky. Later came assurances from all the mayors of the cities of the Ohio Valley, promising their support to the enterprise and expressing their intentions of coming to Cincinnati to spend some time during the Exposition.

Within the past few days another trump card has been played by the Exposition in securing the promise of former President Roosevelt to come to Cincinnati during the time of the Exposition. Colonel Roosevelt is desirous of coming here for several reasons. It was his great-uncle, Nicholas Roosevelt, who built the first steamboat that navigated the Ohio river, she being launched just 100 years ago—in 1810—and it being partially in commemoration of this event that the exposition is being held. It also was in Cincinnati in 1902 that Colonel Roosevelt, then president of the United States, made his first public official declaration in favor of improvement of inland waterways, a plan of conservation which has resulted, among other things, in the building of the Fernbank dam in the Ohio river, near Cincinnati, the completion of which also will be celebrated by the Exposition. It is expected that Colonel Roosevelt will spend several days in the city during the Exposition as the guest of his son-in-law, Congressman Nicholas L. Engworth.

FAMOUS POTTERY MAY GIVE DEMONSTRATIONS

Cincinnati, O. — (Special.)— Efforts are being made to have the Rookwood Pottery, Cincinnati's famous home of ceramics, place a working model in the Ohio Valley Exposition. It is the boast of the Rookwood management that it produces no duplicates—that every piece of art ware produced by its associates is an original. If this display is made, it will show how the various kinds of vases and other pieces are fashioned, and it is believed that arrangements can be made by which prospective buyers may be allowed to place their autographs upon such pieces as they may select and have them decorated, glazed and produced later on. This practice has been pursued with a number of noted actresses and actors who have visited the Rookwood Pottery, including Mme. Schumann-Heineck, Eleanor Robson, Madame Modjeska, E. S. Willard and others, and it is believed that it would add much to the attractiveness and general interest of the ceramic display at the Exposition.

SOUTH'S CORN EXHIBIT WILL CREATE FURORE

One of the Big Features of the Ohio Valley Exposition.

Cincinnati, O. — (Special.)— The general impression that the Middle West has a monopoly on the raising of corn promises to receive its quietus at the Ohio Valley Exposition, to be held in Cincinnati from Aug. 29 to Sept. 24. In assembling the industrial, products and resources which will make up the Southern exhibit at the Exposition, the representatives of the various railroads in the South are giving particular attention to securing examples of the South's natural wealth of which the outside world knows little or nothing. And working along this plan, special efforts are being made to secure a large and classy exhibit of corn grown in various sections of Dixie, with the idea of impressing visitors to the Exposition that the South will grow anything that any other section can produce, and in just as high quality. For some years the matter of experimenting with the growing of corn has been progressing in the South, with the result that experts now boldly announce that with proper application and the employment of up-to-date methods of cultivation, the South can be made the greatest corn-producing section of America. Reports from the Department of Agriculture in Washington give interesting figures on this experimental work. In South Carolina a boy, devoting all his time and knowledge to corn planting and cultivating, succeeded in raising 152½ bushels to the acre in a section where the average yield was but 16 bushels per acre. In Virginia nearly 1,000 acres were planted and cultivated under improved methods, with the result that an average

"Frank," said Lucy to me, "marriage is a very serious matter."

"How did you find that out at eighteen?"

"I am much older at eighteen than some girls are at twenty-five. Now, there are certain faults my husband might possess which I would not be able to endure, but others wouldn't trouble me. Before we take the final step I propose to test you to discover if you have one especial fault that I am sure would separate us."

"But if you tell me you're going to test me isn't that giving away the whole thing?"

"My object in telling you beforehand is that I shall have to seem to act wrongfully to you. I shall be able to tell you that I had an object. You understand?"

"Certainly. And I suppose that I had better tell you that I'm going to test you, too, so that if I behave badly you'll understand."

"H'm! I supposed when you told me that I was far too good for you you meant it."

"And I supposed that when you said I was the best fellow in the world and you were proud to be loved by me—"

"Don't be silly. I sometimes think that you at twenty-three are younger than I am at eighteen. How are you going to test me?"

"How are you going to test me? I mean what for?"

She did some very hard thinking in that youthful head of hers and then said: "It won't do any harm if I tell you I'm going to make you jealous. Jealousy separates more married couples than any other cause."

"Did you get that from a statistician?"

"Now you're talking absurd again."

"Very well; go ahead; make me jealous. But I warn you that your plan will be a failure. Suppose you succeed?"

"In that case I shall consider that it wouldn't be safe to marry you."

"I shall test you for the same fault. But if I don't succeed I shall consider that it won't be safe to marry you."

"Why not?"

"It will indicate that you don't love me. No one can love another without jealousy."

"Except having perfect confidence in that other."

"Very well. We'll try it."

And we did try it with a vengeance. When we came together again we resumed our dialogue.

"It's all over between us," said Lucy, both sad and angry.

"Didn't I stand the test?" I asked in an injured tone.

"I should think not. You haven't spoken a word to me for a week."

"I was testing you."

"Was it necessary to test me by constantly sailing past here with that one girl—a girl you know I despise?"

"It wouldn't be any test to flirt with two."

"I flirted with half a dozen."

"It wasn't for me to tell you how to test a fiancee."

"I should think not. I couldn't have acted on your advice if it was to act as scandalously as you have acted."

"It seems to me that I have stood your test and you haven't stood mine."

"Do you call it a test to select a girl like that and go about all the while with her looking as if you were about to kiss her? It was disgusting."

"And didn't you go about looking up lovingly at Scrimmer? I didn't care for the other fellows—they were blonds. Scrimmer was the real thing."

"I'm glad I have him to fall back upon now it's all over with you."

"And I suppose Camilla will help me out."

"I wish you to understand that no man to whom I am engaged shall pay the slightest attention to such a girl."

"Not for a test?"

"Not on any account. I consider it an insult to me. If you had taken some of the other girls, such as Grace or Alice or Bess?"

"No one of those girls would do for a test. Grace is homely as a hedge fence, Alice is cold as an icicle, and as for Bess?"

"They are all at least to be respected."

"Yes, and they are your friends. They're so much to be respected that they wouldn't take your fiancee away from you, because?"

"Because?"

"Both you and they know they couldn't."

I was getting tired of this and resolved to bring it to a close.

"I say, Lucy, I am delighted at the success of my test on you."

"Delighted?"

"Yes. Didn't I tell you that love begets jealousy?"

"Jealousy! You flatter yourself if you suppose you can make me jealous of that creature."

"I am awfully jealous of Scrimmer."

"Because he is such a perfect gentleman, I suppose."

"He wouldn't kiss and tell, I admit. Come; we've each tested the other with remarkable success—that is, we've proved we love each other."

I took her in my arms. She was mollified.

"I knew you loved me," I said. "The test didn't amount to anything, though. You weren't jealous, were you?"

"Certainly not!"

"Nor was I."

Baldheaded Row

Early Piety Not Always the Cause of Baldness.

In Paris there lived a great physician of world wide renown who proved to the world that falling hair is caused by microbes.

Dr. Sagerbund proved that baldness is directly due to these pernicious and persistent microbes. He proved to every physician on earth that these invisible yet voracious little devils dug and burrowed into the hair root and finally devoured the hair bulb. This of course destroyed the vitality of the hair which fell out and caused thinning of the hair and finally baldness.

Inasmuch as it is an accepted fact that baldness, falling hair and dandruff are caused by a germ, doesn't it stand to reason that the only way to prevent such calamities is to kill the germs?

And doesn't it stand to reason that the only way to kill these germs is to use Parisian Sage, which the Owl Drug Store and the Red Cross Drug Store guarantee it to cure dandruff, falling hair and itching scalp in two weeks, or money back.

Parisian Sage is a delightful hair tonic and is pleasant to use. It is not sticky or greasy, and contains only those ingredients that will surely benefit.

It is now sold by druggists all over America, and by the Owl Drug Store and the Red Cross Pharmacy for 50 cents a large bottle. It is used extensively by women who desire luxuriant hair with a radiant luster. The girl with the auburn hair is on every package.

DO YOU TAKE THE HERALD?

HE PAID THE RECKONING

By MOLLIE K. WETHERELL.

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

A long while ago, when the people of Europe lived in an artistic atmosphere, a stranger stopped one evening at a peasant's cottage in the south of Spain and asked for supper and a night's lodging. He was made welcome and comfortable so far as these poor peasants were able to make him.

The family consisted of a man perhaps thirty-five years of age; his wife, a young woman of twenty-two or twenty-three, and their child, a boy about eight months old. While the stranger was eating his supper his eyes were constantly fixed upon the man, who sat smoking his pipe by the chimney, turning them from him to the woman who sat on the opposite side, nursing her baby. In the man's face was a certain repose, a contentment with the world and with his lot in it. The woman's, though that of a peasant, was tinged with a certain indescribable spirituality. When the child sat up in his mother's lap and looked at the guest his eyes were opened very wide, and there was an appearance of intelligence in them beyond babyhood, beyond childhood—even, it seemed at times, beyond manhood.

When the stranger had eaten his supper he said: "I shall be gone in the morning before you are up. Please tell me what is the reckoning, that I may pay it now, for my supper and my bed."

"There is nothing to be paid, señor," said the man. "What we have given you to eat, while it is good enough for us, is not good enough for a gentleman like you. At any rate, it is not of any real value. As for the bed you are to sleep on, you will fare no better than the mules. What presumption, señor, it would be for us to take money for these things. By doing so we would call down the displeasure of our patron saint."

The stranger made no reply to this, but, taking up a candle, mounted a rude staircase. In the morning, however, he was still in the cottage, coming down from his room after the peasant and his wife had breakfasted. The woman gave him what remained in the house for a meal, after which he said:

"You will not permit me to pay for your hospitality, but possibly you may accept a gift at my hands. I am an artist and will draw your likenesses."

To this the husband demurred, saying that the gentleman's time was too valuable to be spent sketching poor peasants, but the wife took a woman's view of the matter. She wished for the portraits of her husband, herself and especially her child. So she persuaded the man to sit with her and their boy for the stranger to copy.

The artist placed the woman in a chair, holding her child in a standing position, while the man stood looking over her shoulder at both her and the boy. Then from a portmanteau he had with him he took out drawing materials, and, improvising an easel out of a chair, he set to work. He made a number of outline sketches of the three, also filling in separate drawings of them. When he had finished he put them away and said:

"I shall take away what I have done with me, but this," selecting one of them, "I will return to you. If you desire to improve your condition or are in need of money you may be able to sell it for a fair price."

With that the artist took up his portmanteau and departed.

Some time after this when the peasant had forgotten the incident and his wife was lamenting because the artist had neglected to send the sketch a man appeared, saying that he had been sent with it by the artist. It was in a frame, and in one corner a name was written. But the name was not familiar to the peasants. They hung the picture on the wall and were very proud of it. When the neighbors came in to look at it they would be asked, "Are not the figures like us?" and the reply would be: "Yes, they are like you, but they are holy people. Your baby resembles our blessed Saviour."

The peasants kept the picture for many years. Meanwhile they grew to be old and their boy became a young man. He loved the daughter of a wine grower, but she was without dowry, and he was without any means to set up housekeeping. Then his mother remembered the artist's words that price might sell the picture for a price. Her husband had no faith in this, but the boy, who was in love, begged his mother to try. Her affection for her son triumphed over her desire to keep the sketch, and with him she went to Seville.

On reaching the city she went to a church to pray for the success of their undertaking. When they came to the altar both stood still in amazement. There before them was their sketch in painted colors inclosed in a massive frame. It represented Mary and Joseph and the infant Jesus.

The next day people gathered in knots to discuss a bit of news. A peasant woman and her son had come in from the south with the original sketch of one of the most famous of Murillo's paintings of the holy family. They did not know its value, but when a dealer told them that there were persons who would give a thousand sequins for it they were amazed. They agreed to take this amount, the dealer taking the risk of selling it at a profit. Then the two peasants went home happy.

The Art of Writing.

Writing began with the rude picture writing on bone and rock and passed slowly by a natural and inevitable transition from the literal representation of the objects to the symbolic suggestion of ideas, to a word alphabet and then to pure sound signs. The whole process is manifest from the very infancy of Egyptian picture writing, as crude as that with which the savage peoples still record their deeds. From these crude signs the process went on in its slow transformation to the phonetic writing typified in the Rosetta stone to the Phoenician, Greek and Roman modifications which brought us to the arbitrary sound symbols which the voice contains into articulate speech.

A Woman's Great Idea

is how to make herself attractive. But, without health, it is hard for her to be lovely in face, form or temper. A weak, sickly woman will be nervous and irritable. Constipation and Kidney poisons show in pimples, blotches, skin eruptions and a wretched complexion. But Electric Bitters always prove a god send to women who want health, beauty and friends. They regulate the Stomach, Liver and Kidneys, purify the blood; give strong nerves, bright eyes, pure breath, smooth, velvety skin, lovely complexion, good health.

Mothers-in-law in Bethlehem.

The married women of Bethlehem are renowned for their remarkable headresses. They are large and entirely conceal the hair. It was told that the foundation is a box, stiffened and covered with cotton. Chains of silver on which are string rows of silver coins ornament the front, and a great white veil made of cotton gives the finishing touch. Strongly built and active, the matrons of Bethlehem look very imposing. I should scarcely think they live in great subjection to their husbands. That they make alarming mothers-in-law I can well believe. There is a proverb in Palestine, "Were the mothers-in-law to love her daughter-in-law, dogs would go into paradise."—Century

"It cured me," or "It saved the life of my child," are the expressions you hear every day about Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. This is true the world over where this valuable remedy has been introduced. No other medicine in use for diarrhoea or bowel complaints has received such general approval. The secret of the success of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy is that it cures. Sold by all dealers.

Safe From Poisonous Serpents.

A physician who spent some time in the countries bordering on the Gulf of Mexico found a curious body of men among the natives called curanderos de culebra, or the safe from vipers. Having been inoculated with the poison of the serpents, they were proof against their venomous bites. The inoculation was made with the venom tooth of a viper and he built of a native plant called mamo del sapo (toad's hand). The preventive inoculation has been an old custom among the natives of that region.

If you are not satisfied after using according to directions two-thirds of a bottle of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets you can have your money back. The tablets cleanse and invigorate the stomach, improve the digestion, regulate the bowels. Give them a trial and get well. Sold by all dealers.

HER BANK ACCOUNT

By J. ANTHONY TWING

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

A man suffragette and a man anti-suffragette were discussing the question of votes for women. The suffragette led off by stating that women often owned property and were entitled to vote for those who made the laws affecting their interests. A widow, for instance, had not even a husband to represent her. A woman who might have more business ability than many men—

"What's that you say about a woman having business ability?" interrupted the anti.

"I said that a woman might"—

"Do you include my wife?"

"I haven't the pleasure of an acquaintance with your wife."

"If you had you would never have made that statement."

"Is your wife a poor business woman?"

"You just try her in a matter of banking."

"Not up to that, eh?"

"I should say not. When I married her she had some funds and insisted on managing them herself. I opened a bank account for her and tried to teach her how to keep it. She learned very quickly what the check book was for, but the pass book baffled her. I brought down her balances for her in the check book, so that she would know how much she had in bank."

"One day I handed her her pass book that had just been balanced at the bank. She looked at the figures and seemed very much pleased. Then she went off and looked at her check book balance. Soon after that she presented me with a fur lined coat as a surprise. It was not long before she received a surprise herself in the shape of a notice from the bank that her account was overdrawn. She came to me to ask what it meant. I told her, and she left me with a puzzled look on her face."

"A few days later I received a polite note from the cashier asking me if I would kindly call at the bank. I did so, and he received me with a peculiar smile. Taking me into a private office where no one would hear, he told me that he had sent my wife notice that her account was overdrawn to the amount of $250. Then he showed me a note from her, in which she inclosed her check on his own bank for the amount to square the account."

"Your wife is not used to keeping a bank account, I take it," he remarked in kindly consideration of my feelings.

"Oh, yes, she is," I replied. "I've told her all about it."

"It can't be a mistake of ours?"

"No; a mistake of mine. I should have told you that she can't learn just how the trick is done. I'll give you a check for her overdraft."

"I wrote him a check and that evening asked my wife how she expected to wipe out an overdraft in that way. She was very much surprised and disgruntled. I thought that I'd better look into her check and pass books, and what do you suppose I found? When a short time before I had handed her her newly balanced pass book she had noticed that the balance brought down was $350 to her credit. The balance I had brought down for her in her check book was $10. There were checks out not yet presented at the bank for $340. Being a mathematical prodigy, she figured that if she had $340 in the pass book and $10 in her check book she must have a balance of $350. She at once determined, in the generosity of her dear innocent heart, to spend it in a fur lined coat for me. I paid for the coat, and it furnished food for the moths."

"She was so disgruntled at her inability to manage her account that she said she would draw out all her money and give up banking. I asked her what money she referred to. She said that since I had paid the overdraft there must be several hundred dollars to her credit. Rather than try to explain to her that the account had been closed I deposited $400 in bank, and she drew a check for it, and in this way the matter was settled."

"Well, there was no more trouble after this till one day I left her to go on a business trip. In my check book I left a check payable to her order for a blank amount duly signed, so that if she needed money she could fill in the amount she required and get it at the bank. During my absence she ran short of money. A bill for perfume came in for $4.25. She filled in this amount, drew the money and paid the bill."

"The next day she needed more money. She submitted the case to a friend, who advised her to write a check for all the funds she would need till my return, take it to the bank, and they, knowing she was my wife, would probably cash it. Instead of taking it there herself she sent it."

"Well, she got the money. But when I came back, happening in at the bank one day, the cashier greeted me with another grin, this time more idiotic than before, handing me at the same time the check my wife had drawn, to which she had signed my name."

"Great heavens! It was a forgery. I couldn't have written my name any better myself."

"I took the thing home and showed it to her."

"Why, I supposed," she said, "I should sign your name as nearly as you sign it as possible."

"No, sir; women are no good for keeping bank accounts."

HOW THE TARIFF BOOSTS PRICES

SENATOR CLAPP, REPUBLICAN TELLS OF THE WORKINGS OF THE PAYNE-ALDRICH BILL.

ALDRICH COULD SAVE MONEY

By Clyde H. Tavenner.

WASHINGTON, June 25, (Special to the Daily Herald):—Why is it that the price of articles on which the tariff was not advanced, has increased since the passage of the Payne-Aldrich Bill?

I put this question to United States Senator Moses E. Clapp, of Minnesota, one of the genuine progressive Republicans of Congress. "I can answer that question," replied Senator Clapp "in less than two minutes, and no one will successfully contradict my statement."

"In the Payne-Aldrich revision of the tariff the rates on scores of articles were advanced. Those increases have advanced the price of everything; yes, have increased the price of articles on which the tariff was not changed."

"You can't raise the cost of living to a man who is producing something to sell, without forcing that man to raise correspondingly the price of what he has to sell."

"Suppose both of us are in business, and that each has to use what the other produces. Suppose the tariff on the article I handle is increased, while the tariff on the article you handle is not increased; By virtue of my increased protection, I force you to pay increased prices. What are YOU going to do about it? What MUST you do about it? Answer: You must increase the price of what YOU have to sell! And that's just the way it works out all along the line, and in the end all of the increases fall upon the broad shoulders of the consumer."

"But you will hear it said constantly with reference to something on which the price has been advanced, 'Oh that isn't in the tariff at all. That increase has nothing to do with the tariff.' But the fact is tariff revision upward on a few articles reaches all along the line."

"The new tariff law has cost, and is costing the American people millions on millions of dollars, in increased cost of living. And if the Payne-Aldrich bill had been beaten those millions would have been saved to the people."

The Republican Platform.

The eve of the Congressional campaigns is at hand. It looks as if the Republican party proper will boldly attempt to bluff the American people on these propositions:

That Aldrichism is a good thing for the country.

That "Uncle Joe" belongs to the Abraham Lincoln type of statesmen.

That the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill was the "best tariff bill ever passed," and is a God-send to the consumer.

That the expenditure of more than double the sum used by Cleveland to run the government is really necessary for "party solidarity."

What Democracy Offers.

Here is the platform the average Democratic candidates for Congress will present to the people:

Lower duties on the necessities of life.

An income tax that a large part of the burden of the cost of government may fall upon those best able to bear it.

Reciprocity with Canada and our best customers.

Repeal of Section 2 of the Aldrich act that forces tariff wars and retaliation.

Election of senators by direct vote.

Old-time Democratic economy in public expenditures.

Restoration of popular government in House of Representatives.

In Loving Remembrance

Beautiful toiler, thy work all done, Beautiful soul into glory gone.

Sorrows and watching and fears God giveth thee rest, rest from all Rest from all possible sighing and tears;

Rest through God's endless wonderful years

It was so sudden our white lips said:

How we shall miss her the beautiful dead.

Who taketh the place of the precious one fled?

But God knoweth best.

We know He watches the sparrows that fall;

Hears the sad cry of the grieved hearts that call.

Carrie E. Thomas, daughter of W. H. H. Tuttle and wife, was born June 10, 1881; departed this life June 7, 1910; age 28 years, 11 months and 7 days.

She was married to Fern M. Thomas in 1905, but now the close companionship of husband and wife is now broken. No one but the faithful husband can realize the loss; but this is the will of God.

Carrie was a member of the Methodist Church. The funeral was held at the Denmark Church to a very large crowd. Rev. Hershberger, of Ladoga, conducted the services. Six of her brother sisted as pall bearers.

Terrible Croup

One Who Knows Recommends a Remedy to Anxious Mothers.

My little boy, who is four years old, has suffered a lot with croup. On several occasions we thought he was gone.

After trying all the old time remedies and most of the new, I came home one night at midnight, and my wife said, "The boy has the croup again—suppose you get a bottle of Hyomei." "More junk," I said, "but we will circulate our money so they will all get some."

I hastened to an all night drug store, brought it home. In five minutes he was breathing easier. In fifteen minutes he was sound asleep. It broke the croup so quickly it scared me.

Anyone wishing to cure the croup of a child I hope will give Hyomei a trial.

Wishing you the best of success, which you surely deserve, I remain Jos. E. Clark, 204 6th St. S. E. Washington, D. C., Oct 7, 1909.

Hyomei is a remarkably effective remedy in case of croup and it should be in every home where there is a croupy child. Full instructions how to cure croup comes with each outfit.

Complete Hyomei outfit including inhaler costs $1.00 at druggists everywhere and at the Owl Drug Store and the Red Cross Pharmacy. It is guaranteed to cure catarrh, coughs, colds and sore throat.
